

“PENGUINS SAVED THE DAY”

Snow was fallin' heavy, the North Pole froze up tight.
The reindeer came down with the flu on Christmas Eve night.
Santa scratched his beard and said, “Now what am I to do?”
Then he saw some little tuxedos waddlin' along two by two!

They slid in on their bellies, lined up all in a row,
Santa said, “If you're ready, let's give this a go!”

Penguins pulling Santa's sleigh,
Flappin' their wings and they're on their way,
Waddling fast through a winter sky,
Did you ever think that penguins could fly?

From igloos and icebergs more came without delay,
“Load us up with presents, Santa, then just point the way!”
They zipped on down the glaciers, they surfed the polar seas,
Those penguins flew like rockets all across the Arctic breeze.

No antlers, no hooves, but man, oh man, they sure could slide,
Then good ol' Santa laughed so hard an elf swore that he cried!

Penguins pulling Santa's sleigh,
Flappin' their wings and they're on their way,
Soarin' proud like a snow ballet,
That Christmas Eve, they earned a big hooray!

No Dasher, no Dancer, no Vixen tonight,
Just black and white tuxedos in the winter moonlight.
From the North Pole to your rooftop, what else can I say?
Penguins, oh those penguins, they clearly saved the day!

Even Rudolph had to say,
Like Christmas pros, they pulled the sleigh,
Christmas Eve was saved that night,
By penguins eager to take flight.

"Merry Christmas!" they cried as they slid away,
On their way back home that Christmas Day!
